A solo-concert by singer and pianist
Line Gøttsche Dyrholm

Thursday 20 March, 7 p.m.
at the Danish Institute

Former classical violinist and lead singer in Belle Ville, Line Gøttsche, is now pursuing a solo project. In this new project Line seeks intimacy rather than technical perfection and explores a simpler and more personal approach to the creative process.

During a 12-month long musical celibacy with a piano and a simple studio set-up, she experimented with musical expressions based on few instruments.

The outcome is a feminine and fragile expression based on the piano's endless potential for tonal shades accompanied by texts that describe the tones in human relations. Line creates a poetic and imaginative atmosphere of slow elegance and graceful intimacy reminiscent of Edward Degas' ballerina paintings.

During the spring, Line has a residency at The Danish Institute, where she will be working on her forthcoming debut release.
